

DIAGRAM SHOWING SOURCE OF CITY WATER SUPPLY

The point where the water is secured is 24 ft by actual measurement, instead of 30 feet from the bank, and it is in a pocket in the shore, in which an eddy revolves. The bank here is a dumping ground for all sorts of refuse. The surface of the eddy shows silt and green slime. It not only is a drain for refuse dumped on the bank, but is a catch basin for all the city filth from La Crosse river and the North Side.

President Doerflinger Warns Public to be Cautious in Use of Water Until Relief is Secured

DAY DEFIES CITIZENS TO TAKE CHARGE OF WATERWORKS

To the Public:—Conditions rendering the city water unfit for household purposes exist. They can be remedied promptly. I consider it an official duty to advise caution in using it until it is publicly announced that an improvement has been accomplished.

(Signed.) WILLIAM DOERFLINGER, President Board of Trade.

Statement by Frank Smith:—The city water is being taken from a pocket containing an eddy, in which filth of every description accumulates. I have taken dozens of citizens to see it, and they are mad through and through. I am going to make this thing my business until it is fixed up. It is an outrageous injustice to the people of this city.

Frank P. Hixon, B. E. Edwards and S. Y. Hyde each told Mr. Smith to go ahead and fix up the intake pipe so as to get pure water, and to draw on them for the cost of the work.

Extracts from statement by James T. Day, president of the board of public works:—My first knowledge that this pipe terminates in a pocket was twenty-four feet from shore is dated a week ago last Monday. The board has proceeded to remedy it.

ANY PERSON WHO ATTEMPTS TO MAKE ANY ALTERATIONS OR IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THE WATER SYSTEM OR ANY PART OF IT, WITHOUT AUTHORITY, CONTRARY TO THE CITY ORDINANCES, WILL BE PROSECUTED AT ONCE.

Statement by William Doerflinger, president of the board of trade: Personalities must not enter into this matter. A deplorable condition has been found to exist. It must be remedied immediately. IF ANY ATTEMPT IS MADE TO FRUSTRATE PLANS TO STOP THIS MENACE TO PUBLIC HEALTH, A MASS MEETING WILL BE CALLED.

STATEMENT MADE BY MAYOR SORENSEN

There has been some talk of a special council meeting but Mayor O. J. Sorensen said today that none will be called at present, as there is no need of it.

"Mr. Day discovered the facts complained of about two weeks ago," said the mayor. "He immediately wrote for piling to the old pipe, and he also began investigating the possibility of siphoning water from the small well, thus using the 24 inch pipe. He expressed deep concern over the matter, and I am convinced that all this talk originated from his having told some people in confidence of what he had found. This pipe is several feet under water. It has broken at this point several years ago. It could only be discovered by investigation. The blame for the condition was not originally Mr. Day's fault, and I assure you that he did not lose a minute in seeking a

DAY REPLIES IN A STATEMENT TODAY

"I understand there is a good deal of excitement today about the condition of the intake pipe which has been referred to as the intake pipe of the big well. The only difference between the private citizens who are excited about it, and myself and the Board of Public Works, is that they are making a noise about it and we are not. My first knowledge of the fact that this pipe terminates twenty-four feet from the shore in a pocket with an eddy from below, is dated a week ago last Monday, and the knowledge was as great a shock to me as it has been to others who have discovered the fact.

"I want to say that that condition has existed for nine years, and that nothing having occurred prior to a week ago Monday to call the attention of the present Board of Public Works to it, we assume no responsibility for the condition. We do

CRIPPEN PLANNED TO MARRY TYPIST

Miss Leneve Told the Neighbors as Soon as Mrs. Crippen Went She was to Wed

MORE EVIDENCE ABOUT SCAR

Friend of Mrs. Crippen Today Testifies She Had a Scar Similar to that on Corpse

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The desire to marry Ethel Clare Leneve, his typist, was established today as the motive for the alleged murder by Dr. H. H. Crippen of Belle Elmore Crippen. Mrs. Emily Jackson, a neighbor of the Crippens, testified at the resumption of coroner's inquest that Miss Leneve told her several weeks before the disappearance of Mrs. Crippen that she and the doctor were "only waiting for Mrs. Crippen to make good her threat to leave her husband so that the doctor could get a divorce."

After the divorce Miss Leneve said, Mrs. Jackson testified, she and Crippen would be married.

"I occasionally visited Miss Leneve before Mrs. Crippen disappeared," the witness said. "I always found her depressed and tearful. She told me that she realized her embarrassing position whenever she saw the Crippens together. She said they quarreled frequently and she was afraid that she was the cause of the trouble."

Mrs. Crippen threatened to leave the doctor for another man, Miss Leneve, told Mrs. Jackson. She did not question Miss Leneve as to who this man was.

Mrs. Jackson said she visited the Hilldrop Crescent home of Crippen in March two months after the disappearance of Mrs. Crippen and that the house smelled musty.

Scar the Same

Further proof that Belle Elmore Crippen had a scar similar to that disclosed on the remains found in the cellar of Dr. H. H. Crippen's house was given at the resumption of the inquest today by Mrs. Eugene Stratton, wife of an English comedian and close friend of Mrs. Crippen.

Mrs. Stratton said that Mrs. Crippen had undergone an operation that produced just such a scar as that found on the remains. Inspector Dew repeated much of his police court testimony at today's inquest.

BLUE AND GRAY ARMIES MAY JOIN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 19.—With leaders of the "lost cause" cheering as heartily as those who led the armies of the north and with Commander-in-chief Van Sant's own hand playing the rebel air of "Dixie," the forty-fourth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic began here today.

Never before has there been such a complete absence of sectional feeling and dozens of southern soldiers, who have "dropped in" for the encampment are hailed as "comrades."

So strong is this fraternal spirit that there is talk of merging the G. A. R. and the Organization of Southern Survivors into one body for future encampments. While this union is considered significant by the leaders of the G. A. R. that the idea should have gained such headway so soon after its proposal.

The annual parade will be held Wednesday.

FIRST MRS. EARLE TURNS HIM DOWN

PARIS, Sept. 19.—"I have had enough experience with his barometric deviations which are either mounting skywards or plunging into the depths. There was more certainty in our divorce than in our marriage. If my ex-husband is in Paris, he has not made the fact known to me and I do not believe that he will do so."

The first Mrs. Ferdinand Pinney Earle, now Alice Fishbacker, today threw this dash of cold water on the reported hope of a reconciliation entertained by her former husband, the American artist-soul-mate-and-affinity-expert who is said to be in this city in the hope of winning back the wife whom he divorced to wed Julia Kuttner, his psychic supplement.

Miss Fishbacker said that Earle would be permitted to see their child at the home of a mutual friend, but that he would not be received by her.

TO FORCE CANAL FORTIFICATIONS

Taft Determined to Have Work Started while Republicans Control Congress

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 19.—Owing to the fact that he expects some violent democratic opposition to the plan, President Taft proposes to attempt to push through the coming short session of congress a bill authorizing the fortification of the Panama Canal. He will take no chances on allowing the proposition to go over until the next congress, regarding which there is so much talk of a democratic majority.

Following Congressman Kiefer's speech in opposition to the project made during the last session of congress, Champ Clark, leader of the minority, and the man picked for speaker in event of a democratic congress, took the floor and said:

"I am certain that every American citizen would agree to the proposition of the gentleman from Ohio if he could be convinced of its feasibility and I want to say that he is making mighty good headway in proving its feasibility."

Wants $2,000,000 Start

With this as a cue the administration expects some violent opposition to the recommendation which the president already has before congress for a $2,000,000 appropriation for canal fortification. This appropriation would only cover the beginning of the work which, according to the plans of experts, will before completion require an outlay of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

President Taft feels that it is well within the treaty rights of the United States to fortify the canal and has been convinced by practically the unanimous verdict of his army and navy experts that fortification of the zone is the only method by which its neutrality can be guaranteed and protected.

LAW PARTNER OF FREAR ARRESTED

HUDSON, Wis., Sept. 19.—George R. Hewitt, a Hudson attorney, former law partner of Secretary of State Frear, was arrested and placed in jail here Saturday charged with selling a bogus mortgage of $4,800 to A. and J. Hochstein, two wealthy citizens. He wrote the mortgage on land near Clear Lake and is said to have forged the names of two farmers named Eggert and Miller, securing the $4,800 about two years ago. When the first interest day arrived Hewitt paid it a year ago but was unable to meet the interest when it matured on the second period.

FIGHT ON TAWNEY CLOSES TONIGHT

Herman L. Ekern, Returning from First District, Forecasts Anderson will Win

TAWNEY'S GREAT MACHINE

He Has a "Peach," but the Rural Vote Is Expected to Send Him to Retirement

If the forecasts of leading Wisconsin Progressives who have gone to the aid of Sydney Anderson, progressive candidate for congress against James A. Tawney, in the First Minnesota district, are to be relied upon, the young Lanesboro attorney goes into the primary election tomorrow with more than even chance to defeat Tawney.

Although with 18 years of continuous service and patronage Tawney has built up what they declare to be a magnificent political machine in the First district, the serious attacks made in his stronghold in past elections, the attitude of the democrats and the awakening of the rural vote to the great scope of the progressive movement, the Wisconsin "carpetbaggers" say will encompass his defeat.

Olmsstead County Pivot

Tawney's great strength lies in Winona county, which he expects to carry with such a large majority that losses elsewhere will be more than overbalanced. Leaders of both factions, however, admit Olmsstead to be the pivotal county, and it is here the hardest fight has been centered, Messrs. Gifford Pinchot, Francis Heney and Congressman Tawney all delivering speeches in this center. Mr. Tawney's speeches in all cases have been confined to defense of his past actions rather than promises of his stand on future legislation, and this, the progressives say, will hurt him when the votes are counted.

Controlling all but one-sixth of the newspapers of the district through postoffice appointments and federal patronage, a liberal amount of which has been at his disposal, Tawney has had a big advantage over his opponent in the matter of publicity, but Anderson and his supporters have conducted the hardest fight ever made in the district, and they claim their success will come from the country districts where the influences of the Tawney machine does not extend.

Ekern Expects Victory

Herman L. Ekern, progressive republican candidate for insurance commissioner of Wisconsin who spoke at Plainview and Chatfield, passed through La Crosse on his return to Madison, and expressed the belief that Sydney Anderson has a good chance to win.

"The main trouble is that the people of the district do not thoroughly understand the broad issues of the progressive movement yet," said Mr. Ekern, "and are inclined to permit the Tawney orators to confuse them and obscure the real issues by wearisome discussions of minor issues, such as the oleomargarine law and the like. Tawney has been on the defensive and has promised nothing, and I think this is going to have its effect on the rural vote especially."

STRICT BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

This Is what Assemblyman
Charles A. Ingram
Says This State
Needs

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 19.—The approach of the republican state platform convention, to be held here September 27, is bringing many legislative candidates to Madison, and the probable course of that body in shaping the policies of the party in Wisconsin is the subject of earnest consultation daily. With the prospect that progressive Kansas will be out-progressed in the making of the Wisconsin republican platform, political thought is now centered entirely on Tuesday, the 27th.

No less is attention centered on the probable organization of the two houses of the legislature. Of most importance is the speakership of the assembly. Charles A. Ingram of Durand, a candidate for speaker, stated his position in unequivocal terms while here Saturday. Briefly, his platform will be, "Results to be attained of rewards to be dealt out." From legislative candidates, with many of whom he has worked in the last two legislatures, he has received sufficient encouragement to warrant his candidacy. He was the floor leader for the progressive side at the last session.

Assemblyman Ingram declared in favor of a shorter session. To bring this about he proposed to have a strictly business organization of the house. This would be possible only by constituting the committees according to special fitness of each member (which would necessarily mean the abandonment of the spoils idea or of factional differences), and by adherence to strict rules as to working hours of committees and the legislature itself. It is Mr. Ingram's firm conviction, as expressed in an interview during his stay in this city, that Wisconsin wants more than anything else just now a really business administration on the part of the coming legislature. He is basing his candidacy for speaker on the principle that business and not politics shall rule in the next session.

"If I am elected speaker," said Mr. Ingram, "it shall be my purpose so to organize the committees of the house as to secure the best working results. Such an organization can be perfected only by constituting the committees according to the special qualifications, ability and merit of the members. Such an organization will give to each member the best opportunity for the exercise of his real talent.

"In order to do this the member who assumes the responsibility of speaker must be entirely unhampered, and for that reason I shall refuse absolutely to offer or pledge any position to any member. Any statement to the contrary is entirely without foundation."

Mr. Ingram said he is impressed with the fact that the coming session is bound to be of vast importance, even epochal, in view of the many weighty problems referred to it by the last legislature. He believes the large measures should be given precedence over those of minor importance and should be reported out earlier. That this practice has not before obtained, together with the fact that the committees have uniformly been too large, is responsible, in his opinion, for the long sessions in the past. The people of Wisconsin plainly don't want long, expensive sessions, and Mr. Ingram is convinced that he has the key to the solution of the problem, whereby shorter sessions may be obtained in Wisconsin.

Assemblyman Ingram had a hard fight for renomination in his district, and large amounts were spent by his opponent, but he expects to return to the legislature with a larger popular endorsement than ever. Prominent in his pre-primary platform was his advocacy of the initiative and referendum, which is also one of Senator La Follette's favorite planks. Mr. Ingram made this a daily issue in his speeches to his constituents and should he have the opportunity again to present this issue he will make it one of his aims to secure its enactment into law. Upon this subject he said:

"I believe in popular government—a government of the people. Therefore I stand for the initiative and referendum, giving to the people themselves the power to propose or reject laws independent of the legislature."

WANT VACATIONS DURING FAIR WEEK

Bridge Tender Joseph Dolle and Board of Public Works Clash Over
Matter

Because the two bridge tenders at the wagon bridge want to take their vacations during fair week, the board of public works and Joseph Dolle clashed today when the former informed him that he must work during fair week.

It is said that for the past three years Mr. Dolle has taken his vacation during fair week, during which time he was employed as one of the gate tenders at the fair. This year James Wetherspoon, the other bridge tender asked to take his vacation during fair week and in view of the fact that Mr. Dolle has been allowed to get away during the fair for several years, the board allowed Mr. Wetherspoon to get off this year.

This morning Mr. Dolle visited the city officials and aldermen and asked if they could not use their influence in having the board change its action and allow him to get away during the fair instead of Mr. Wetherspoon. The members of the board, however, declare that Dolle must work during fair week, but may take his vacation later in the fall.

NEW YORK AGHAST AT POLICE GRAFT

Women, Gamblers, Dives and "Sure Thingers" All Pay Tribute for Protection

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—New York is aghast over the intimation that revelations of police graft that will eclipse the sordid sensational developments of the Levov investigation are impending. The inner circle is about to be uncovered and the manner in which gamblers, disorderly house proprietors, "sure thing" workers of every kind, and even the women of the street have been forced to contribute for protection will be fully told if reports in circulation about police headquarters and in the city hall are well founded.

One report is that one full confession has been promised. Acting Mayor Mitchell and District Attorney Whitman by a police department official of high rank who was "caught with the goods" and who is willing to tell all he knows and send many of his fellows to prison if he is assured immunity. This story is being repeated today with great circumstantiality, one report having the man a captain of police and the other an inspector but the two men who actually know if the report is true, Mitchell and Whitman are silent.

Investigation Certain

It is certain that there will be grand jury investigation of the police force. It will start next week. The score of attaches of the commissioner of accounts office who have investigated the open gambling and the display of vice on principal streets and who are believed to know what amounts were paid for protection and to whom the money went will be the first witnesses called. They will be followed by persons who have benefitted by lax police methods and it is planned to call fully a hundred witnesses who are believed to know the methods that have been pursued in violating the law.

Acting Mayor Mitchell and Mayor Gaynor are said to be in accord in the present plan to purify the police and stop at least the open violation of the law. It was after a visit to Mayor Gaynor at Deep Wells, that Mitchell went to see District Attorney Whitman and the grand jury investigation was decided on.

HEALTH OFFICER TELLS OF MEETING

Health Officer A. M. Murphy, who attended the convention of the American Public Health association in Milwaukee recently, says it was a splendid gathering. Delegates numbering between 300 and 400 from all parts of the United States and Canada were present, among whom were some of the ablest men in the country upon health problems. The topics discussed were of special interest to health officers.

The question of quarantine for diphtheria and scarlet fever was one that created considerable discussion. Mr. Murphy says the conditions here are similar to those in other cities and they will always be so as long as there is a mixed foreign population, who hide the different diseases at home. Other important questions discussed were the pure milk supply and the prevention of spread of contagious diseases. The next convention will be held in Cuba in 1911.

DENIES SETTLEMENT FROM ROTHSCHILDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Dr. Rudolph Menn father of Miss Olga Menn, for love of whom Baron Oskar Rothschild committed suicide, arrived in Chicago from Europe. He was not accompanied by his wife or daughter, and said that he left them in Germany, where his daughter is confined in a sanitarium. He declared his daughter's health was wrecked as a result of the troubles she has experienced, but expects she will be able to come home within a short time. Dr. Menn denied emphatically the stories of a settlement made upon his daughter by the elder Baron Rothschild. He declared the Rothschild affair was of too anxious a nature to consider in connection with a financial settlement of any kind.

Referring to the trouble he experienced with the New York customs officials, over duty on jewels said to have been given Miss Menn by the Rothschilds, he said the jewelry was his own and was not worth over $50.

CHANLER HAD A VERBAL AGREEMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—In return for the ironclad antenuptial agreement by which Robert W. Chanler bound himself to turn over practically his entire fortune to Lina Cavalieri, it developed today that the pair entered into a verbal agreement by which Cavalieri agreed to pay Chanler's debts, clear his property from its mortgaged indebtedness, and turn over the first $20,000 coming to her out of the written agreement to Chanler's first wife in satisfaction of alimony due from Chanler. This agreement, however, being verbal, will be hard to enforce, it is admitted by Chanler's friends. It indicates the hard head for business possessed by the diva, who bound her husband by a compact from which he will have difficulty escaping. Cavalieri, it is said, agreed to pay Chanler's debts in the belief that they did not exceed $25,000. When she found out that they were twice this sum, she began to renege.

THE STATUS OF BALDWIN

The Tribune's investigation of matters relating to the campaign of Judge Cameron Baldwin against Hon. John J. Esch has established facts concerning which misunderstanding may exist in some quarters, and in justice to a large number of people the exact truth should be known.

The facts are these:

Judge Baldwin did not act upon the advice of progressive republican leaders in La Crosse.

He did not consult a single La Crosse man known to be identified with progressive republican leadership.

His candidacy is disapproved by progressive republican leaders in La Crosse both as to its method and as to its merits, and will not have the support of any of them.

In the assumption that conditions justify a demand for a change in representation, and that Judge Cameron Baldwin is the man the hour seeks, Judge Baldwin is absolutely alone so far as progressive republican leaders in La Crosse are concerned.

The purpose of this statement is to disabuse any who may have entertained that idea of the impression that the candidacy of Judge Baldwin is in any sense a La Follette movement. It is the individual political enterprise of Judge Baldwin, and with him rests the necessity of its justification both as to its merits and its methods.

LA FOLLETTE AND ROOSEVELT

Theodore Roosevelt, we believe, will be recognized when the pages of now current history grow cold as one of the world's greatest moral philosophers.

That history will also write him as a statesman of power and versatility is also beyond question.

That he is the greatest constructive statesman of his time, however, we are inclined to doubt, and it is without the desire to detract from that due the ex-president that we make the assertion that Senator Robert M. La Follette is his superior both in constructive power and executive ability.

In support of this contention reliance may be placed upon the public records of Col. Roosevelt's presidential administration on the one hand, and the records of Senator La Follette's administration as governor of Wisconsin and his work in the United States senate on the other hand.

In analyzing the performances of these two men some decided differences will be observed, both as to temperament and as to method.

Roosevelt is an aristocrat by breeding and association; he is democratic by impulse. His most popular utterances and deeds have been those impelled by the spur of the moment, rather than the product of his most deliberate thought.

La Follette is democratic by birth as well as by environment and temperament. His strong moves are all planned with deliberate thought and remarkable foresight.

Roosevelt's method is to compromise with "standpat" opponents, to take the best he can get at the time and hope for further improvement at some later time.

La Follette is uncompromising always, determining with exactitude what the occasion requires, and standing through successive defeats rather than make the slightest concession to that which he considers in the interest of evil and less than right.

In his presidential term Roosevelt, fearing utter defeat, compromised on his pure food law, on his railroad bill, and on other remedial legislation, and the imperfections in the laws he then secured are written in the statutes to this day.

La Follette, in Wisconsin administration, declined to compromise, and fought through three campaigns until he had secured what he felt justice demanded in the way of railroad legislation, a primary law, a pure food law and other similar measures.

The La Follette laws of Wisconsin are recognized throughout the United States as models in their respective classes of legislation; the federal laws of Roosevelt are conceded to be inferior in scope and efficiency.

La Follette had, and has, a great advantage over Roosevelt.

La Follette had the constructive statesmanship that enabled him not only to see an evil but to conceive and execute an effective remedy.

Roosevelt could see the evil, but he could not prescribe the exact remedy, so he had to leave much to others less patriotic than himself.

La Follette is far in advance of Roosevelt in the matter of the detection of wrong and the conception of remedies.

La Follette became the pioneer of the conservation movement when in 1885, as a congressman, he introduced a bill to prevent a great Indian lands steal. During the administration of Col. Roosevelt La Follette introduced a bill to conserve certain western lumber, mineral and water power lands, and so strong was his measure that, at that time, Roosevelt could not follow him and give his approval. Col. Roosevelt is advocating such a law now, his conversion having been wrought by Gifford Pinchot.

La Follette first declared that there could be no regulation of railroad rates without physical valuation of railroad properties as a basis of computation. He attempted to get an amendment to that effect into Roosevelt's railroad bill, but Roosevelt declined to support it on the ground, it is understood, that to insist upon it would jeopardize the entire bill. Today Roosevelt is publicly advocating the passage of a law providing for the physical valuation of railroads.

Wisconsin took the lead in drafting a bill prohibiting members or retainers of public service corporations from holding office; Roosevelt has just pronounced in favor of that doctrine.

La Follette secured the passage of a primary election law; Roosevelt has only now taken up the fight for such a law in New York, his own state.

These are instances differentiating the attitudes and abilities of the two men. A single thing that goes to the heart of those differences is this:

Roosevelt concentrates his preaching upon phases of a general condition.

La Follette treats these phases as illustrative, and aims his attack at the condition itself.

Roosevelt talks of railroad abuses, dishonesty in politics, looting of the public domain and trust evils in general as of primary importance.

La Follette treats these things as incidents giving expression to a single fundamental evil—the control of government by a business system in the interest of that system. La Follette says representative government has been destroyed, and government seized by this mercenary system. He says that from this one colossal wrong come all the other evils that serve as the targets of Roosevelt. He preaches the restoration of representative government as the one thing essential to the destruction of all the phases and expressions of that basic wrong.

Roosevelt is treating the symptoms of a disease.

La Follette is treating the disease itself.

That is why, in Wall street, La Follette is the best hated and best feared of all men.

Announcement is made by L. B. Nagler, president of the Hudson Star-Observer, of the sale of that paper to A. E. Reese, of Osseo. The newspaper fraternity will miss Mr. Nagler, who has made a big impression as a progressive newspaper publisher. However, as he is secretary of the state association, and prominently identified with the state administration, he will not for a moment drop out of sight. Mr. Nagler has left the Star-Observer in competent hands.

THE COUPON BALLOT

Voters—The series of articles that will appear under this head from day to day will afford a complete education as to how to vote the new ballot. CUT THESE ARTICLES OUT AND KEEP THEM.

SAMPLE BALLOTS COMING

Samples of the Coupon Ballot will soon be in circulation so that all voters will have an opportunity to see just how to vote with it before going to the polls.

It is the intention to get out a few samples, as soon as possible, which will not have the names of the candidates printed upon them but will be like the ballot to be used at the November election in all other respects, except perhaps the color of the envelope.

It is not possible to get out a sample with the names printed on them until about ten days before election because the regular sample ballots must of course have all the names on them that are entitled to be voted for at the election, and those names cannot be secured from the secretary of state until about fifteen days before election.

The preliminary samples to be gotten out will be printed in the proper colors to be used at the November election and will have the party names, office numbers, and everything that will be printed on the regular ballot except the candidates' names. In the place of the candidates' names will appear the word "Name." This will be practically just as good as the regular samples for the purpose of learning how to use the Coupon Ballot.

Some of these early samples will be put into shop windows in the most prominent places in town so that all will have an opportunity to see just how the new system works. The plan for this is to place a whole sample, before it is prepared for voting, in each place and to place another beside it which has been prepared for voting a split ticket.

At an early date a meeting of the election ward workers will be called by each party committee so as to give them the proper opportunity to study the new law and become familiar with every detail of its operation.

In The Theater

BIG PLAY THIS WEEK

With a record of having satisfied New York players to the extent of over one hundred nights, Margaret Anglin will bring her latest success, "The Awakening of Helena Richie" to the La Crosse theater Sept. 21st, Wednesday night, direct from the Savoy Theater, New York. The play has a further interest for local players from the fact that it is a successful dramatic novel of Margaret Deland's popular novel of the same name.

The acting version is by Charlotte Thompson, a young California dramatist, who has already several successful plays to her credit.

Much interest is evidenced in the coming attraction because Margaret Anglin, one of America's greatest actresses, is said to be doing the best work of her career in the role of Helena Richie, and furthermore, she is credited with having an admirable company of players in her support.

The story is laid, as in the book, in the old western Pennsylvania village of Old Chester, about the year 1860, and relates to the affairs of Helena Richie who resides there, supposedly as a widow, though her husband, from whom she is separated, still lives. Brutally treated by her drunken husband, she left him and is associated with Lloyd Pryor, who visits her cottage from time to time, ostensibly as her brother. The curiosity of the gossiping villagers is aroused and suspicion of her real mode of life begins to grow.

The character of Helena is a remarkable psychological study and Margaret Deland works out the awakening of her heroine's soul by a subtle, yet simple and natural evolution. The play is said to be one of lights and shades, and there ought to be some capital character studies.

Charlotte Thompson's play is in four acts, three of which occur in Helena's parlor where the tragedy is sounded. There is said to be much that is of a lighter nature in the play. The company supporting Miss Anglin includes Martin Sabine, John R. Crawford, who plays the old clergyman, Dr. Lavender; Eugene Shakespeare, Halbert Brown, Walter Howe, Gertrude Sweggett and Sally Williams.

"BILLIE" BURKE MONDAY

Miss Billie Burke, who comes to the La Crosse Theater on Monday evening, Sept. 26, in "Mrs. Dot," has had one of the most remarkable careers of any woman on the American stage. Three years ago hardly anyone in America had ever heard of her. Today she is one of the most popular and successful actresses in this country. She made her first tour as a star last season in "Love Watches" and the theaters weren't big enough to hold everyone who wanted to see her. And she is even more charming, they say, in "Mrs. Dot."

The Lesson

It is a poor rule that will not work both ways. A minister was catechizing a group of Sunday school children on the incident of Eutychus. He had explained how at Troas the apostle had been preaching his farewell sermon and had prolonged his discourse to so late an hour that the young man Eutychus fell out of the window, being overcome with sleep. But St. Paul went down and brought him back to life again. "And what do we learn from the incident?" he concluded.

A little girl put out her hand, and the minister pointed to her.
"Please, sir," she answered, "we learn that ministers should not preach long sermons."—Tit-Bits.

Pilgrim's Progress John

Cornelius V. Collins, his superintendant of New York's prisons, said in Troy of a discredited penologist.
"He is as ignorant of prisons as Deacon Smith was of religion."
"Deacon Smith, you know, once began a religious lecture with these words:
"Ladies and gents, there's three Johns mentioned in the Good Book. There's firstly, John the Evangelist; second, John the Baptist; and third, John the Bunion."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

He Was Guilty

Mrs. Harry Lehr, at a luncheon in Newport, ridiculed the assertion of a French novelist that men object to cigarette smoking women because their sense of smell is so exceedingly delicate and keen.

"If a man's sense of smell were really so extraordinary," said Mrs. Lehr, "he couldn't stand his rooms and clothes and mustache all saturated with stale tobacco and whiskey fumes."

"Man's keen sense of smell! And yet how well the average man is hit off by the story of the tramp arrested for vagrancy."

"As this tramp stood up in the dock, the magistrate said to him:
"Well, my man, what is the charge against you?"
"Fraternity, your honor," the tramp replied."—Washington Star.

Guessed Right

"You can't guess what sister said about you just before you came in, Mr. Highcollar," said little Johnnie.
"I haven't an idea in the world, Johnnie."

"That's it. You guessed it the very first time."—Tit-Bits.

He Took the Blame

August Herrmann, the new grand exalted ruler of the Elks, said at an Elks' banquet in Detroit.
"The guilty man always gives himself away, for, like the chap who bought the 40 cent bathing suit, he can't hide his guilty conscience."

"The chap I have in mind entered the water at Atlantic City in a 40 cent suit of blue flannel. As he splashed about he was joined by a girl friend. The girl flashed her bright eyes over the tumbling expanse of sea, and then, with a sigh of delight, she said:
"Isn't the water blue, today?"
"It's shameful," said the man, with a hot blush. "It's perfectly shameful how this cheap bathing flannel runs!"—Washington Star.

Forbidden

"If you refuse me, Miss Gladys, I shall get a rope and commit suicide."
"No, colonel, you must not do that. Papa said distinctly he would not have you hanging about here."—M. A. P.

"Old Mr. Carleton," he answered, "he's a little under the weather. I ran out to see how he was getting along."

The girl's face clouded. "Oh, I'm sorry," she said, "he's such a dear old man. And he's my father's greatest friend, you know. I hope it's nothing serious."

Helmar shook his head. "No, I think not," he answered, "he'll be all right—for this time. And he's a first class chap, too. Do you know, I think Jack is awfully like him, in many ways?"

At the words a sudden change came over the girl's expressive face. For a moment she hesitated, then raised her eyes to his. "Franz," she said, "how often do you see Jack now?"

Helmar glanced at her quizzically. "Oh," he answered, "every once in a while. Not so often as you do, though, I guess."

He spoke jestingly, but the girl gave him no answering smile, and he hastened to add, "Why, I expect to see him Wednesday night, Marjory, to make arrangements for a little dinner we're going to have Thursday—Jack and Arthur Vaughan and I. Is there anything I can do?"

The girl colored faintly. "It's only this," she said, "and I ought to write to him and not bother you. But when you see Jack, would you mind telling him that I shall be at home Friday evening if he cares to come out?"

Seemingly there was more in the words than appeared on the surface, but Helmar, with a certain instinctive chivalry, chose to treat the request with apparent lightness. "Of course I'll tell him," he answered, "with all the pleasure in life."

She looked her gratitude. "Thank you very much, Franz," she said, "and you will remember, won't you?" He nodded reassuringly. "I surely will," he answered, and as he spoke, the train burst shrieking, around the near-by curve. "Oh, don't miss it!" she cried. "Thank you, Franz, thank you so much; good-by."

Breaking into a swift run, Helmar with the spaniel racing excitedly at his heels, reached the station platform just in time. Boarding the train, and taking a seat far forward in the almost deserted car, he sat for some time in thoughtful silence, and then at last voiced his reflections to the one friend who never betrayed his confidence. "Rex, my boy," he said slowly, "our friend Jack seems to have achieved the secret of universal popularity."

The spaniel, listening with head cocked knowingly to one side, gave a sharp, quick bark in reply, and Helmar laughed. "Does that mean you think so, or you don't think so?" he asked, but the little dog refused further to commit himself, and curling up in his master's lap, went promptly and comfortably to sleep.

CHAPTER III.

The Prodigal Son.

"The pains and penalties of Idleness."
It was after eight o'clock, yet still faintly light out-of-doors, as Jack Carleton left his rooms at the Mayflower Club, and came slowly down the winding staircase, with one hand groping for the railing, as if uncertain of his way.

At first sight he looked extremely well, and in his fashionably-cut suit of light gray, his tall and well-built figure showed to excellent advantage, though in the five years which had passed since his graduation he had seemingly grown heavier and stouter, and somewhat distinctly softer looking, as if the active exercise of former days had come now to be the exception, and not the rule. And this impression, as he paused midway on the stairs to light a cigarette, was still further borne out by the appearance of his face. He was handsome enough still, and his complexion, indeed, from a distance, in contrast with his fair hair and closely-clipped mustache, seemed the perfection of ruddy health; yet the tell-tale signs of the match, as he held it to his lips, told a far different story. His color, naturally high, was beginning now to be patched with red and white, giving his face a significantly mottled look, and if any further hint had been needed, it was furnished by his eyes, which stared straight ahead of him with a curiously glassy expression. Plainly enough, Jack Carleton was drunk.

Still holding fast to the rail, he accomplished the remainder of his journey in safety; then started a little unsteadily toward the door of the lounging room, stopping short at the entrance, and staring vacantly in at the half dozen figures looming mistily through the haze of smoke. Instantly he was hailed by two or three at once. "Hallo, Jack, what'll you have?" "Come on in, Jack!" "Make a fourth at bridge, Jack?" Carleton, standing motionless, with one hand fumbling in his pocket for a match with which to relight his cigarette, still gazed aimlessly and apparently without recognition into the room. "Make a fourth at bridge, Jack," some one called again sharply, and Carleton, starting jerkily, but with intense gravity, shook his head. "No, not tonight," he said slowly, as if settling some matter of immense moment to all concerned, "can't play tonight; very sorry, got date." He stood a moment longer; then, half mechanically, as it seemed, turned and slowly walked toward the outer door that led into the street.

With a little exclamation, one of the loungers hastily rose, and followed him out into the hall. Jim Turner was a stock broker, and a most successful one. He was a man of middle age, short, stout, and unattractive looking. He had a round, fat face, pale reddish hair and mustache, small, nondescript, expressionless eyes, a pasty complexion, and white, pudgy hands, which he took pains to have manicured regularly three times a week. He was entirely unimaginative, practical, commonplace—and very successful. He had one favorite motto: "Look at things as they are, and not as you'd like 'em to be."

He quickly overtook Carleton—a feat, indeed, not difficult of accomplishment—and laid a detaining hand on his shoulder. "See here, Jack," he said in a low tone, "I want you to let me sell out some of your things. We get advice that there's trouble coming—and pretty quick, too. And by this time you're really carrying quite a big line. So I guess it wouldn't do any harm if you began gradually to unload a little. Don't you think so yourself, Jack?"

Carleton gazed at him from eyes in which there was no understanding. He shook his head slightly. "Don't want 'sell," he said at last, "ain't I 'way 'head th' game?"

"Oh, sure," Turner assented. "You are ahead of the game, all right, but I want to have you stay there. And when things start to go in a top-heavy market, why—they go almighty quick. That's all. There's your Suburban Electric, now. That's had a big rise. Let me sell five hundred of that, anyway. You've got a good profit. And you'll find you can get out and in again, too. You won't have any trouble doing that."

Again Carleton obstinately shook his head. "No," he said, with an almost childish delight in contradiction, "I don't get 'ny 'dvices like that. I got 'dvices S'urban 'Leetric's going to 'undred'n fifty. I don't want 'sell now. Not such 'fool."

Turner, seeing the futility of further argument, shrugged his shoulders impassively. "Well, drop in at the office and see me tomorrow, anyway, Jack," he said.

Carleton nodded. "Sure," he answered cheerfully, "I'll be in. Got 't get 'long now," and he made again for the door.

Turner slowly made his way back into the lounging room. One of the moogers looked up at him with a laugh. "Old Jack's pretty full, isn't he?" he said. "Growing on him, I should say."

A second lounge caught up the remark. "Full," he echoed, "oh, no, not for him. He's sober as a church now. When he can walk, and see where he's going, he's all right. You ought to see him around the Club here some nights. Talk about raising hell!"

The first man yawned. "Well," he said slowly, "it's like lots of other things. It's all right and good fun for once in a way, but for a steady thing—why, Heaven help the poor devil that gets going it and can't stop. There isn't any humor in it then. Nothing jovial, or convivial, or anything else. It's just simply damnable; that's what it is. And Jack Carleton's too good a fellow to go that way. It's a shame."

The second man nodded in answer. "That's right enough," he assented, "and it's rough on his old man, too. He's an awfully good sort, the old chap. And Jack could amount to something, if he wanted to. That's the bad part. He was never cut out for a soak."

"Doesn't he do anything at all?" some one asked.

HOLY COW!

The Athletic club had met to eat the health of Hon. Toga B. Solon.

Besides the eats there were to be talks, and that's where Billy H. Cow came in.

Hon. Toga Solon, as guest of honor (said honor being the honor of paying for the entire grubstake) sat at the head of the table. It's easy to sit at the head of the table if one foots the bills.

Now the Hon. T. Solon had heard the Macedonian call. He was going to take an evening train into the Minnesota jungles where stalks the Tawney Lion. He regretted, etc., but while the oratory was aeroplaning among the rafters he made his unostentatious escape.

At the Athletic club dinners everybody makes a speech. Loose tongues let fly Blarney more fitting for a clan o' gael convention than for a Dutch lunch.

'Twere thus this night. Eloquence was rampant. Elocutionary pyrotechnics illumined the overhanging clouds of tobacco smoke. Wit made merry men "laugh to split."

It was at the end of the second address that the Hon. T. Solon departed, but an hour stretched away, and another, and still "the senator from Arkansas" was emulated by one Epicurean Demosthenes after another. And at last it was Billy H. Cow's turn.

Billy had been peacefully sleeping with his back to the head of the table. He says he always sleeps that way. Billy blinked, arose and stretched.

"Gentlemen, I apologize," he said, "but I have always felt that it is better to be talked to sleep than to be bored to death. (Cheers.)"

"It gives me great pleasure to be with you tonight, a guest of this splendid aggregation of capital and intelligence." (Applause.)

"You have, in this organization, some of the greatest appetites of the century." (Applause.)

"The capacity of your membership is the envy of Pilsen and the despair of Milwaukee. (Cheers and laughter.)"

"This club has made a deep impression upon the produce market and contributed powerfully to the high cost of living. (Stamping and cheers.)"

"But time is not afforded in which to pay just tribute to all your gastronomic achievements, for upon this auspicious occasion I desire to clothe in fitting words my appreciation of one to have whom with us, with his check book, is a convenience as well as a pleasure. We have joined in eating tender sentiments to him, in this hour of triumph and accompanying generosity. I refer to a man of brilliant amplitude, to a man whose insatiable hunger constitutes a constant rebuke to the mollycoddle dietician, to a man who can meet every emergency of the groaning board with untimely digestion. Gentlemen (with a never finished sweeping bow to the empty seat at the head of the table) I have the honor to refer to the distinguished patrician, Hon. Toga B. Solon. Holy Cow! where in thunder did he go to?"

When the roar of laughter had subsided the worthy president arose to explain that the honored guest had departed some hour and a half before.

Gravely Billy H. Cow raised his glass to a favorite toast which, for the first time in his life, he seemed to take seriously:

"Gentlemen," he said, "Here's another evidence of our continued imbecility."

RIVER SEASON IS WORST ON RECORD

Passenger, Freight and Excursion Trade Has Been Abandoned Practically for the Summer

The boating season for 1910, which is rapidly drawing to a close, marks one of the poorest seasons that the boatmen have experienced in many years. The unsuccessfulness of this season was due almost entirely to the exceedingly low stage of the Father of Waters, which since about the middle of June has been almost un navigable for the boats. The steamers which did attempt to run experienced great trouble with sand bars, which combined with the several accidents that happened during the season, the sinking of the Helen Blair and the burning of the J. S. tended to make the public in general somewhat afraid of the water and thus lightened the passenger trade.

This summer has been without the excursion, as most of the excursion boats have made no effort to run, but have remained at the bank at their winter quarters in hopes that a rise would come soon. The large boats owned by the Diamond Jo company have had practically no season at all this year, the Sidney and Dubuque being the only boats of this company's fleet that have left winter quarters.

DECORAH FAIR BIG SUCCESS

The Winneshiek County fair held at Decorah last week was a fine show, exhibits being good, races fast and amusements first class. Baseball was the principal feature. The Friday game was the best and was one of the hardest fought games ever seen here. The Decorah team strengthened by Chic Fraser, the old Cub pitcher, fought for twelve innings with an "All Star team" composed of Strawberry Point, Calmar, Postville and the Waukon battery, Scovall and Betz. The All Stars secured two runs in the first and Decorah tied it up in the fifth. From then on it was a pitchers' battle with no scoring until the 12th when the "All Stars" made a few bobbles and with two hits Decorah got four runs. The "All Stars" got one more in the twelfth. Scovall, the Waukon Boy Wonder, made a fine showing, striking out fifteen, getting Fraser three times. Scovall allowed seven hits, Fraser five.

Unavoidable Oscar Hammerstein, in the smoke room of the Lusitania, praised America by contrast with Europe.

"They have to admit in the old world," said the patriotic impresario, "that we've got them beaten on every count. Talk to them about the matter, and they can only quibble."

"Oh, yes," said an English banker to me the other day, "you've got a great country, the greatest country in the world—there's no denying that."

"Then he gave a nasty laugh."

"But look at your fires," he said. "Your terrible fires are a disgrace to mankind."

"Oh, our fires," said I, "are due to the friction caused by our rapid growth."—Washington Star.

RUBBER MILLS TAKE FIRST GAME

The Rubber Mills baseball team took the first game of the series with the Clothing company team for the city amateur championship.

The Clothing Company team scored in the second on an overthrow to third base, which was their only opportunity throughout the game. The Rubber Mills team scored their two tallies in the sixth inning on clean hitting. The features of the game were a three-base hit by L. Anderson of the Rubber Mills team and a line drive which Larson caught with his right hand.

TWO SMALL FIRES ON NORTH SIDE

The homes of William Miller, 1710 Berlin street, and Del Bigsby, 2019 Wood street, caught fire yesterday morning about 10 o'clock. The former was caused by a gasoline stove in the kitchen, but as the No. 4 fire department was immediately called, little damage resulted. The fire at Mr. Bigsby's home originated in a clothes closet, but the cause is not known. Little damage was done.

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

For sale and recommended by O. T. Erhart.

TAFT ATTENDS YALE MEETING

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 19.—The Yale corporation with President Taft one of its most prominent members in attendance was scheduled to hold its fall meeting today. The president arrived early today and occupied his private car until the hour of the meeting. The question of increasing the salaries of the faculty will be the leading business. In view of President Hadley's well known desire to raise salaries, favorable action is expected. After dinner at the Graduates' Club, President Taft will leave for Cincinnati.

1910 CORN CROP IS BOUNTIFUL

If corn raised on the farm of C. Drekstrah near Barre Mills is any sign, all talk of crop shortages and poor corn crops are "hot air."

The crop of corn from Mr. Drekstrah's farm is abundant and the ears are unusually large.

"It was true," said Mr. Drekstrah to a representative of The Tribune, "that the corn crop had every promise of being a failure this year. But since the rains, which were so badly needed, the growth has been remarkable. The stalks seemed to shoot up over night and the crop this year will equal last in my opinion."

And each fruitful life has its frost.

PROF. HERING TO SPEAK HERE

Noted Christian Scientist to Speak at La Crosse Theater Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow evening Prof. Hermann S. Hering, a noted Christian Scientist, will deliver a lecture at the La Crosse theater. This promises to be a very interesting lecture and will be free to the public. It is given under the auspices of the First Church of Christ, Christian Scientist.

Prof. Hering is a native of Philadelphia, Pa., and son of the late Dr. Constantine Hering, whom Hahnemann called "The Father of Homoeopathy in America." Professor Hering is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania from the department of mechanical engineering, receiving the professional degree of M. E. in 1886. He was made professor of mechanics and electrical engineering by the Philadelphia board of education in 1887, and in 1891 was called to the John Hopkins University as associate in electrical engineering, where he remained eight years. In 1899 he gave up his profession for the purpose of devoting himself entirely to Christian Science work.

AMERICAN JAILS DISEASE BREEDERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Narrow cells and low ceilings are out of place in an up-to-date prison, according to the delegates to the international prison congress who inspected the Blackwells Island penitentiary and the workhouse, where most of New York's short time offenders expiate their sins. Sir Evelyn Ruggles Brice, K. C. T., who is chairman of the British commission, said that England would be ashamed of any such prisons and that there was little wonder that tuberculosis reaped a ghastly harvest if American prisons were all like those inspected. They said, however, that New York's municipal lodging house was the most remarkable in the world, there being nothing in Europe that could compare with it.

MONEY MISSING FROM BIG BANK

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—The First National bank admits that at least $1,000 had been stolen from its currency department and that a systematic investigation was being made to see if that amount covered the full shortage. The officials also admitted that a young assistant teller, who had been employed in the department and had handled millions of dollars annually, had been discharged at the time the money was found to be missing, but insisted that his discharge had nothing to do with the shortage.

The money disappeared while the manager of the department was away on his vacation. Officials of the bank have kept the loss secret from other employees and said they accused no one.

GAYNOR LIKELY TO GET NOMINATION

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—With the democratic state convention little more than a week away, Mayor William J. Gaynor, of New York, is rapidly qualifying for the role of a gubernatorial candidate. The prediction is freely made today that the mayor, despite his early statement that nothing could prevent him from completing his mayoralty term, will allow the state standard to be placed in his hand.

Today's predictions are based on two letters written by the mayor. In one of these, to the secretary of the Saratoga county convention, he is said to have written:

"I shall have to carefully consider the matter in the near future."

"I must inform myself and act not for my own future and interest but wholly as to what is right and best for others."

Pressed for a direct answer today to the inquiry of whether he would refuse the nomination if it were tendered him, the mayor declined absolutely to discuss the matter.

GIN USED AS MEDICINE

When Properly Used, Makes Fine Remedy for Kidney, Liver and Bladder

Doctors agree that good, pure gin, when properly combined with other ingredients, makes the best kind of medicine for kidneys, liver and bladder. The prescription used most is here given. Mix six ounces good, pure gin with one-half ounce fluid extract buchu, then add one-half ounce murax compound. Shake these together thoroughly and take one to two teaspoonfuls of the mixture three times a day after each meal. This home made remedy has cured many bad cases of kidney and bladder trouble and will prevent serious disease, such as Bright's disease, chronic rheumatism or diabetes. The ingredients for this formula can be had at any well stocked drug store. Be sure to get the Murax compound in sealed package with yellow wrapper as the genuine is not put up any other way.

Reward of Merit

The motor car was obstinate. It wouldn't budge. Industrious, the man in waterproof cap and goggles turned the crank handle; but without result. He turned and turned and turned. Then he paused.

"Twist it agen, Alfered!"

"Ire a 'oss!"

"Go it Johnson!"

Thus the crowd.

But to such gibings he was deaf.

Once more he hopefully seized the crank and turned it strenuously. No effect. Again he paused to remove his cap and regain his breath.

Observing the action, an elderly gentleman stepped forward and dropped a coin on the upturned cap.

"Thank you, my man—thank you!" he murmured. "It's the only street organ I ever saw that didn't send me nearly deaf with its noise! You deserve a-copper!"—Answers.

Unhappy Monsters

A woman passenger on a transatlantic liner bothered the officers and captain unceasingly about whales. A hundred times a day she asked to be called if one was sighted.

"But, madam," expostulated the captain, finally, "why are you so anxious about this whale question?"

"Because," she replied, "all my life I wanted to see a whale blubber."—Success Magazine.

A woman's inability to hold her tongue may be due to her natural weakness.

DECIDE TO COME

State Association Accepts Invitation to Meet in La Crosse Next February

The next convention of the Wisconsin State Buttermakers' association will be held in La Crosse the first week of next February, the invitation of La Crosse having been accepted.

Last week during the Wisconsin state fair W. J. Ennison, Frank Kohn and William Collins extended the invitation to the executive committee which was in session there. Milwaukee was after the convention and the gentlemen from that city asked to make Milwaukee the permanent meeting place of the association. In view of the fact, however, that La Crosse is located in the midst of one of the best dairying sections of the state it was decided that the next convention should be held here.

This is one of the largest conventions that meets in the state and it is expected that about 500 buttermakers will attend the gathering here.

Grain Letter

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Wheat traders were certainly mixed in their views this morning as the market was a choppy one and at the end of the morning hour prices for the leading months of December and May were about where they closed last week, around $1.00 1/2. December and $1.06 May. The range for the morning was from $1 to $1.00 1/2 to 1/2 December, and the May after touching $1.06 1/2 on first trade weakened to $1.05 1/2.

In the corn trade there was a return of the heaviness of last week and the active months showed declines of 1/2 to 3/4 cents on early trades. December opened 1/4 cent lower at 53 1/2 to 53 cents and weakened to 52 1/2 cents. May opened with a break of from 1/2 cent to 1/4 cent first trades, 56 1/2 to 55 1/2 cent and there was a further dip to 55 1/2 cent with only 1/4 cent rally. September corn showed some firmness around 53 1/2.

Oats prices eased off in sympathy with the weakness in corn. September oats opened at 34 1/2 cents and sold to 35 1/2 cents. May opened at 35 1/2 to 36 1/2 cents. 38 1/2 cents and sold to 38 1/2 to 38 1/2 cents.

Provision trade was exceedingly slow. There was barely enough business transacted to establish quotations.

September wheat 1/4, December 1/4 and May 1/4 cent lower. September corn 1/4 cent higher, December 1/4 lower and May 1/4 cent higher. All oats closed at the opening price. Provisions higher.

SLAIN FIGHTING NEGRO BURGLAR

Chicagoan, Aroused by His Daughter's Screams, Is Shot Down; Black Man Arrested

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Aroused by the screams of his two little daughters, Clarence B. Hiller, chief clerk of the Rock Island railroad, grappled with a negro burglar in his home early today and was shot and killed. Three shots were fired into Hiller's body after he had rolled down the stairs, while struggling with the negro.

Later a negro giving the name of William Jones was arrested.

Negro Captured.

The negro was arrested several miles from the scene of the shooting after drawing his revolver on three policemen who boarded street car on which he was riding. The report of the murder was spread quickly through the police stations and the Chicago Heights police, believing the murderer would take a well known short cut to the car line in order to get down town, hid in the bushes near the street. They say the negro under arrest emerged from the bushes near them and boarded the street car. They followed and overpowered him before he could open fire. The negro's revolver was fully loaded, say the police, but smelled of freshly burned powder.

Jones gave two addresses far removed from the scene of the shooting and could give no explanation of his presence in the neighborhood.

The Hiller home is in fashionable residence section.

SAYS ASTORS ARE MERCENARY ONES

Diva Cavaleri Says She will Press Her Rights Under "Pre-nuptial Agreement"

PARIS, Sept. 19.—"The Chanler family will save itself trouble by not submitting to me the reported offer of $10,000 down and a $5,000 annuity for the surrender of my ante-nuptial agreement with Robert W. Chanler for I won't accept any such offer."

This was Lina Cavaleri's answer today when asked whether she had received the offer that it is said that the Chanler family stands ready to make.

"If I have any rights under the agreement, I shall insist upon them," said the Diva. "If I have no rights I do not wish to profit from the Chanler family. I do not think my husband had anything to do with the offer. It does not sound as though coming from him."

"He went into the agreement with his eyes open and I still believe that he intends to carry out the agreement as near as it is possible for him to do so. I understand the Chanler family accuses me of being mercenary. Could anything be more mercenary than this attempt to buy me off, the same as though I were an adventuress? I am glad the offer has been proposed for it shows where the mercenary spirit lies."

ORGANIZE "GYM" CLASSES TONIGHT

This evening the gymnasium classes of the Y. M. C. A. will be organized, the business men to meet at 8:15 and the seniors at 8:15. These classes will hereafter meet on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays during the winter months. The boys' classes will open tomorrow and will follow the regular schedule. Many new members are being constantly added to the membership roll. The instruction will begin with light work and gradually follow into heavy exercises.

MORE ARE ADDED TO COMMITTEE

President William Doerflinger of the board of trade has added more members to the committee on constitution and by-laws. The original committee was composed of E. S. Hebbard, Frank Winter and N. M. Scott, and the new members added are A. H. Schubert, E. M. Wing, G. J. Schweizer and John Kindley. The committee will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at the La Crosse club to re-edit the constitution and make any suggestions that it may desire to offer.

GERMANY DEMANDS PROOF FROM CZAR

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—The German government decided today to make immediate demand upon the Russian authorities for proof of the guilt of Lieutenants Heinze and Wenzel, under arrest in Moscow on a charge of spying on the recent Russian army maneuvers. In case the proof is not forthcoming, Germany will demand the release of the officers. This action is taken in view of word received from the accused men today that there is absolutely nothing to support the charge against them.

When a man will go to the theater with his family it's the kind of show where he doesn't want to sit in the front row.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Chicago made it three straight from Boston, winning, 6 to 0, in a game featured by Walsh's pitching and a triple play. A triple by Parent and home run by Grandil netted Chicago four runs in the fourth. The triple play was staged in the second. Stahl singled, Lewis beat an infield hit and Purtell lined to Parent. ATHLETICS' FANS DEMAND ODDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Bettors laugh at the odds of 5 to 3 on the Cubs, demanded in the early offer of wagers from the supporters of the Athletics in the coming series for the world's baseball championship. A majority of fans pick the Cubs to win but will not offer odds. The thing that keeps the Cubs from being a favorite is the recognized strength of Mack's pitchers and the fear that they may stand Chance's men on their heads.

CALLAHAN PLAYS FAST BASEBALL

Callahan, the Eau Claire star who was grabbed up by Pittsburgh, is making good in fast company, securing two hits in the game Saturday.

WAUSAU WINS FROM APPLETON

WAUSAU, Wis., Sept. 19.—Wausau defeated Appleton 2 to 0 on Thursday and on Friday 3 to 1 at Wausau, and on Saturday at Appleton 4 to 1 in the championship series between clubs of the Minnesota-Wisconsin and Wisconsin-Illinois leagues. Wausau represented the Eau Claire club, which won the pennant in the Minny league. Wausau outclassed the Appleton winners in each game.

DULUTH AGITATES A BIGGER LEAGUE

Claims Present One Doesn't Pay, and would Enter the Twin Cities

TEAMS CAN'T WITHDRAW

If They're Dissatisfied It's Up to Other Clubs to Vote On Them

Claiming to be disgusted with a league where but three towns come up to the requirements in the way of gate receipts Superior and Duluth have already started an agitation for a league to include Duluth, Superior, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Winnipeg.

Of course the boom is largely in Duluth, as near as can be learned and the fans are booming for their own big man, Al Kuehn, for president of the new league.

President Elliott of the Wisconsin-Minnesota league, maintains that while Duluth and Superior may want to withdraw from the league there is no such thing as a withdrawal and that it will be up to the rest of the teams to vote them out.

The story sent out from Duluth follows: "The baseball season of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league for 1910 was scarcely ended before the campaign was on for the season of 1911, so far as Duluth and Superior are concerned. It is extremely doubtful whether this league will be composed of the same teams next year, and Duluth and Superior are pulling for an organization which shall include St. Paul, Minneapolis and Winnipeg, and one other town not yet chosen."

Jack Desmond, manager of Duluth, and Artie O'Dea, manager of Superior, are eager to break into the Twin Cities. Their desire is to play those towns when the teams of the American Association are not in Minneapolis or St. Paul. Whether this can be arranged or not remains to be seen, but if it can there will be a class B league put into existence that will make the people take notice.

"The season in the Minnesota-Wisconsin league was satisfactory as regards attendance at Duluth, Superior and Winona, but the other cities did not come across as strong as they should. Eau Claire, which had a pennant winning team, did not support the game as loyally as the team had a right to expect. Neither Duluth nor Superior care to be in a league which has to be kept intact by appeals to individuals, when the game should earn proper support on its merits."

"If the proposed new league is formed it is expected that Al Kuehn of Duluth will be president. If the Minnesota-Wisconsin league should continue another year it is expected John A. Elliott will be re-elected."

MICHIGAN STARTS PRACTICE TUESDAY

U. S. GOLF TITLE GOES TO FOWNES

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 19.—W. C. Fownes, Jr., of the Oakmont club, Pittsburgh, won the national amateur golf championship at the Country club Saturday by defeating Warren K. Wood of the Homewood club, Chicago, in the final of the annual tournament, 4 and 3.

STAR OUT OF GAME.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 19.—Jerry Downs, second baseman of the Columbus American association nine, who was hit in the head by a pitched ball during the game and donned his street clothes afterward, apparently not seriously injured, relapsed into unconsciousness later, and was reported to be conscious yesterday at the hospital. It is said that he will be unable to take part in any of the games for the rest of the season.

FAST BOUT TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A rattling ten round bout is looked for at the Olympic Club tonight when the "Dixie" Kid, who seems determined to make good his claim to the welterweight title, will clash with "Fighting Dick" Nelson. The "Dixie Kid" got a decision over Willie Lewis last week and is in good shape for tonight's bout.

BABY BLISS SUES FOR BACK WAGES

Fat "Boy" who Played Against the La Crosse Elks Claims His Pay was Promises

"Baby Bliss," who played with the Fat Men's Amusement Co., when that organization played a game of baseball with the La Crosse Lodge of Elks this summer, has started suit against J. E. Armstrong and F. C. Knee, Waterloo, Ia., for $336.00 salary alleged to be due him as a member of the Fat Men's team.

According to the claims of Bliss he signed a contract to play for $40.00 a week but received mostly promises.

Because of the fact that he was the largest player on the team—weighing 575 pounds—he was to receive the largest salary.

Business, Bliss says, was not rosy, and he was the "goat."

"Baby Bliss," whose real name is Leonard H. Bliss, is a resident of Bloomington, Ill., and started suit there.

COACHES DISCUSS FOOTBALL RULES

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 19.—Fifty football coaches and officials, representing the principal schools of the "Big Eight" and Missouri Valley conferences, met Saturday morning and afternoon to discuss the interpretations of several of the rules which appear vague and ambiguous. The purpose of the meeting was to settle upon a strict construction of these rules and adopt a uniform interpretation for western schools.

The forward pass rule was the most widely discussed one, that clause concerning the passing of the ball from a point five yards back of the line of scrimmage being given the most attention. In case of a forward pass it was decided that the ball should not be considered in possession of either side unless in the actual grasp of a player. No penalty of any nature shall be inflicted for a violation of the forward pass rule until the ball actually leaves the hands of the passer.

Another important rule upon which a strict construction was placed was the manner in which a forward pass shall be made. It was decided that the pass must be made from a point five yards back of the line of scrimmage. The ball cannot go more than twenty yards beyond the line, but need not cross the line of scrimmage.

A more definite wording of the rule concerning the flying tackle also was adopted. It was decided that a man who throws himself under an offensive play shall not be considered as making a diving tackle, but the player who throws himself against an unprotected player in the open is making a diving tackle, in direct violation of the rules.

The rule concerning the dead ball also came under consideration. This was interpreted to imply that the player is not permitted to stretch his arms forward when in possession of the ball if he is in the grasp of an opponent.

CUBS TAKE ONE GAME SATURDAY

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The Cubs and Infants broke even Saturday in a closely contested double header, winning a ball game by a score of 5 to 3, and losing a walking match which lasted ten innings by a 3 to 2 count.

In the opening battle, after Brooklyn had made three runs off Reulbach in three innings, the Cubs came up from behind and won out by a batting rally in the seventh. A home run over the right field fence, with Evers on first, turned the scales in Chicago's favor. Only once before since Tim Jordan quit this town has the ball been hit over the fence. Brown replaced Reulbach after that rally, because big Ed had given way for a subbatter. He held the game safely.

King Cole was loser in the second game, but not until after making everybody work overtime. The Infants batted out two runs in the first inning, and the Cubs could not tie it up until the fifth, in spite of constant bases on balls. Once knotted, the score stuck until the last half of the tenth; then a cluster of three hits put across the run that gave Brooklyn a victory. Twelve bases on balls were issued in the game.

First Game.

What Are You Interested In?

Cosmopolitan Magazine offers you the most interesting, up-to-date fact stories and fiction stories of all magazines.

Woman's Suffrage:

Every woman in the country is interested in knowing the progress of the Woman's Suffrage movement. The daily newspapers keep them generally informed as to what is going on in this country. But they don't know what the women of Europe are doing. To answer this question, Cosmopolitan Magazine sent Winifred Black to Great Britain to study the situation at first hand. Mrs. Black has told the story in a wonderful presentation of the facts, describing the personalities of the leaders and the movement abroad.

Political Graft:

Under the general title of "What are you going to do about it?" Charles Edward Russell, the famous investigator, sociologist and writer, tells the story of political graft throughout the United States—how legislative rottenness is reaching into the pocket-books of the average citizen. In a series of articles in the Cosmopolitan he makes a big sweeping expose, told in a dramatic style, of public corruption as he has found it in various places in this country.

Religious Thought:

Harold Bolce, whose work along this line of investigation is the most notable of any investigator of his time, exposes the radical revolutionary religion that is being taught in the women's colleges of this country; shows how these young women are being graduated into the world equipped with a religious training that is startling, if not actually sensational. These articles are now running in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Great Men:

Every one is interested in what some BIG man does, or has done. The Cosmopolitan Magazine is fortunate in having been able to induce Porfirio Diaz, "Dictator-President of Mexico," to write his autobiography. Besides that, Cosmopolitan has secured the autobiography of General Miles, whom military experts abroad regard as a very great soldier. Both President Diaz and General Miles have been makers of history in the biggest sense. Their autobiographies will appear in the Cosmopolitan.

Perfect Health:

The new thought health movement in this country is growing bigger every day, and Cosmopolitan is running a series of articles on that subject, each of which is written by a noted experimenter in the science of keeping well. Upton Sinclair has already written one, and many other equally eminent writers are to follow. Besides this, Dr. Woods Hutchinson is writing articles on the care of babies, which are of extremely practical nature for every American home.

Fiction Stories:

You like a good story—every one does, whether it be a love story, an adventure story, a laugh story, or a tear story. Among the fiction writers that the Cosmopolitan has been enabled to get to write stories for you are: O. Henry, Bruno Lessing, Jacques Futrelle, Jack London, Porter Emerson Brown, Alfred Henry Lewis, George Randolph Chester, Sir Gilbert Parker, Agnes and Edger-ton Castle, and a score of others, all of whom contribute one or more of their best short stories. Then there is Robert W. Chambers' new serial, which will begin in the Cosmopolitan soon. Watch for it.
